

Summary of Statewide Census Loses

1790-1820

Status of censuses from 1790 to 1820.

A dash in a column means a census was not taken for that state in that year. "Lost" means the census returns never reached Washington in 1830 and were probably lost. "Extant" means the manuscripts of the census returns survive, and microfilmed copies of them are available. ~ Information found on Heritage Quest.

South Carolina	Extant	Extant	Extant	Extant
Tennessee	-----	Lost	Lost	See Comments	In 1820, two federal court districts were in place in Tennessee, one with a U.S. Courthouse in Nashville, the other in Knoxville. The original censuses returned to Washington according to the 1830 law were from the Nashville district only, representing the western two-thirds of the state. The twenty eastern counties enumerated within the 1820 Knoxville district were not received in Washington and are presumed lost.
Vermont	Extant	Extant	Extant	Extant
Virginia	Lost	Lost	Extant	Extant	The "Heads of Families" index to the 1790 census includes Virginia. However, these names were extracted and compiled from county tax lists of Virginia, 1785-1787.
